
PLANNERS: JOIN THE NCGROWTH & SMARTUP TEAM! SUMMER 2020

NCGrowth is an EDA University Center at UNC Chapel Hill that helps businesses and communities create good jobs and equitable opportunities through applied research and technical assistance.

NCGrowth is seeking excellent, highly-motivated graduate students with a wide range of skills and professional experiences – business, law, planning, public policy, environmental sciences, etc. – to work on impactful economic development research projects in rural and economically distressed parts of NC.

Analysts will work with NCGrowth staff, university faculty, and community and business leaders on projects such as:

- Conducting a feasibility study for a multi-county food hub
- Researching affordable housing strategies for the North Carolina Commission on Indian Affairs
- Measuring the impacts of cultural events on regional and state economies
- Assisting rural counties with the development of small business incubators
- Analyzing potential industrial sites for an under resourced county to prioritize investment of limited economic development dollars

Analysts work on a remote basis with occasional required travel. A typical projects consist of 100 hours of work done over the course of the summer or semester, but may extend longer depending on the analyst's schedule and the project scope. Compensation is $20/hr.

Application Deadline: February 9, 2020
