Job ID: 465129	Hours/Shift: 35hrs / 9 - 5
Job Description
The Division of Transportation Planning & Management is seeking an ambitious and motivated candidate for its Research, Implementation & Safety (RIS) Unit. RIS is a team dedicated to improving road safety and eliminating fatalities and serious injuries throughout New York City. RIS implements road safety street redesigns and programs, is responsible for the management of DOTs crash data, conducts large-scale safety research projects, and leads on many agency action plans as the key agency group for Vision Zero, NYCs comprehensive approach to improving safety for all road users. The selected candidate will work on achieving the commitments of New York Citys new Reckless Driver Accountability Act, and will conduct data analysis and prepare reports to analyze the programs efficacy. The applicant will help study driving behavior to identify specific behavior indicating a pattern of dangerous driving as part of compliance with the bill. In addition, the candidate will be responsible for developing safety improvements to city streets with the aim of improving safety for pedestrians, bicyclists, and motor vehicle occupants with a particular emphasis on student and senior safety. This will involve reading NYPD crash reports, determining historical crash trends, and examining road design for possible safety improvements. These safety improvements may include low-cost traffic calming measures, as well as full-fledged street redesigns. Work will involve project and program management, research, data analysis, coordination, and field work. The candidate will be asked to work collaboratively and inclusively with DOT staff, sister agencies, and other stakeholders. Key tasks for this position include performing research and crash analysis, preparing reports, developing and implementing projects to enhance safety for all road users, and providing technical assistance to senior staff.
